Personal Statement

Having completed my BSc in Public Health, I am seeking work in the fields of public health and care with a particular interest in analysis and statistics. I am a hardworking and motivated individual with a love for biology, psychology, anatomy, maths and IT & strategy games. In the field of public health I am interested in the interplay of balancing the best macro statistical results with the peculiar demands of the individual. Identifying the best regime for the individual within the confines of the health system is a fascinating – albeit intractable – problem. In this area I have been experimenting with VertexAI, investigating how it could be used to make balancing these competing needs easier and more productive. I am keen to have the opportunity to exercise my skills in the workplace and better serve the community.

Hobbies and Activities

Video editing

I run a YouTube channel with 4.3K subscribers (<https://www.youtube.com/@IdolBandit>), having started in 2022 and working on it in my spare time. I have learnt a lot about how to capture attention and deliver an effective message, improving significantly with every upload. The channel shows how I can process large amounts of information and analyse it in order to extract the salient points into a condensed, engaging format.
